CAPTAIN ROPER AS A HERO.

Captain Roper was once more the subject of conversation on the water front yesterday, and if the story which was told of him is true, it ought to condone at least some of the offenses which he is alleged to have committed. It is said that at an early hour yesterday morning a gentleman dressed in a long black coat and a black slouch hat presented himself at the steamer and expressed a desire to see the Captain. The cabin boy took a survey of the stranger, and becoming satisfied that the visitor was not a newspaper man, ushered him into Mr. Roper's presence. The latter was apparently at his morning devotions. He sat behind the cabin table, wearing spectacles and reading the Bible, the index finger of his right hand resting on the passage in Job which reads as follows: "They have gaped upon me with their mouths; they have smitten me upon the cheek reproachfully; they have gathered themselves together against me."

The stranger entered cautiously, and after glancing carefully about the apartment he removed his hat and advanced to the table. "Good morning, Captain," he said, "how do you do, sir? I am glad to see you so well, sir." He held out his hand, took that of the Captain most fervently, but Captain Roper was suspicious and made no answer to the salutation. He merely glanced up and eyed his caller suspiciously over the rim of his spectacles. The latter advanced to the table, on which he deposited his hat. Next he drew out his handkerchief, with which he wiped his lips before laying it carefully on the table to keep the hat company. Then he was evidently prepared to speak, and to speak long and well. He hemmed and hawed for a few seconds as if gathering his ideas, and then he commenced.

"I have called, Captain," he said, "on a little matter of business. Now, sir, I sympathize with you in your troubles. My every cloud has a silver lining and so has yours. I think I can see a way to make some money out of this matter, and this is the way I am going to do it. You see you have been fearfully misrepresented by the newspapers. Now, I have been a writer myself."

When Captain Roper heard these latter words he started slightly, and a gleam of suspicion was visible in his sparkling eye. The speaker noted these signs of a coming storm and hastened to quiet it. "I am not now," he continued quickly, "I have nothing to do with the newspapers; no, sir, not I. But I tell you what I have written. I am one of the authors of the 'Life and Characters of the Gentlemen Composing the Last Legislature of the State of California.' My plan is to write a correct and true account of the manner in which you have been treated in this port. We will make it a book and sell it for a dime novel. We will give it a good title, for instance, 'The Trials, Tribulations, Wrongs and Abuses Inflicted upon a British Shipmaster, showing how the Republican officials abuse their powers and encourage Chinese emigration at the port of San Francisco.' Price, only ten cents; to be had at all news-stands and book stores. We will put in some illustrations. On the title-page we will put your photograph, and on the back page that of the beautiful Chinese lady who serves you as a stewardess. Then if you want more pictures, we might put in the likenesses of those two innocent women whom the Custom-house so long would not allow to land, and, of course, will have in the homely features of Pak Kwai, of Assistant Surveyor Brown and Quarantine Master Lawlor. That book, sir, would sell like hot cakes!"

Captain Roper so far had listened patiently. But now he asked: "You want my photograph, do you?"

"Yes, sir; that's just what I want."

"And you are not a newspaper man?"

"No, sir; I am not. I am not at all in public life, excepting that I make a speech once in a while at a Democratic Land League meeting."

As soon as the visitor uttered these fatal words Captain Roper jumped up. His face grew red, and he struggled violently to keep back the utterances which suddenly were on the tip of his tongue. But he controlled himself. He simply raised his index finger from the "Book of Job," and pointed it to the cabin door. The gesture could not be misconstrued. The young Land League orator made a quick grab for his hat and handkerchief, gave one glance behind him and was gone.—Chronicle.

NEWS BY THE AMERICAN MAIL.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamship City of Peking, Captain G. G. Berry, with the American mails of the 1st inst., arrived in harbour late last night. The following telegraphic items are taken from our San Francisco exchanges:—

THE EGYPTIAN QUESTION.

At 6 p.m. the British troopship Malabar and the men-of-war Orion and Cyclops left here for Port Said. Advice from that place report that the Governor of Ismailia has fled. Arabi Pasha's lines in front of Ramleh are being reinforced with twenty-nine-pound guns and two Gatling guns.

Arabi Pasha has gone to Cairo. The Khedive has appointed Omas Lutfi, formerly Governor of Alexandria, Minister of Marine. The Ministry are preparing another proclamation, ordering the people not to obey Arabi Pasha. An officer who deserted from Arabi Pasha reports that rebels under a pretended flag of truce are pushing forward the construction of fortifications two miles from Aboukir. He also states that formidable preparations are being made around Rosetta.

LONDON, July 25th.

The Times has the following from Alexandria: The apartments of the Khedive at Ramleh Palace have been broken into and the trunks burst open and looted by the English troops. The general behavior of both sides enables me to chronicle this as a singular exception to the good conduct of the troops.

THE EFFECT OF DELAY.

The slowness of our military preparations daily strengthens the position of Arabi Pasha. Leading Egyptians declare that if troops only arrive by the latter end of August Arabi Pasha will meantime have ample opportunity to consummate the ruin of the country.

ALEXANDRIA, July 27th.

Arabi Pasha has written to the Sultan as follows: "I trust it is false that, as the enemies of Islam assert, Ottoman troops are coming to Egypt, as I should have to oppose them by force."

A tremendous conflagration broke out in Alexandria at two o'clock this morning. As seen from the harbor, the fire seems to be larger than any since the bombardment. A block of houses on the enemy's side of the canal was destroyed with gun-cotton, as it might have afforded cover for Arabi's soldiers.

An official telegram from the Rebel Government, dated Cairo, July 26th, says: "Armanis refuse on an extension of volunteers. Volunteers are leaving from both Upper and Lower Egypt. Some chiefs of the Bedouins, who, prior to the bombardment, were known as partisans of the Khedive, have promised fidelity, and all the best class of Mussulmans, including the Princess and Princesses of the Khedive's family now in Cairo, are aiding the Government. Ladies have formed a committee for preparing lint. The British have been defeated in two engagements, losing forty killed."

An official gazette publishes a letter from Arabi Pasha, which declares that any person found in possession of a proclamation dismissing Arabi Pasha from the Ministry, circulated by the Khedive's emissaries, will be Court-Martialed. The army will do its duty and defend the country to the last extremity. If the commercial and political interests of the Powers do not induce them to stop the British, a terrible struggle must ensue.

Some Italians, Swiss, French and Germans remain in public administration and continue to receive marks of confidence, notwithstanding the British intrigues to depopulate Egypt.

The Times correspondent at Alexandria confirms the report that Arabi is in regular communication with parties in England. The correspondent also says the Khedive has ordered a Commission to inquire into the reports of the looting by the English. General Alison insists that an investigation be made.

A despatch from Constantinople says that four Turkish ironclads and five transports are ready to start for Egypt. In spite of preparations, doubts are expressed that the expedition will actually be despatched.

The Daily News declares that Turkish action respecting the intervention in Egypt will not have the slightest effect upon the arrangements for the English expedition.

PORT SAID, July 27th. Arabi Pasha, having sent for the Assistant Governor, the latter applied to Rear Admiral Hoskins for protection and took refuge on a steamer. When Arabi learned that he ordered the commander of the troops to take the Assistant Governor's place. Thereupon the Governor became alarmed and also took refuge on a steamer. A telegram from Arabi's Under Secretary of War at Cairo stated that the Governor had gone aboard of an English ship, the commander of the troops would be held responsible for ordering the appointment of a new Governor. The commander of the troops is known to have stated after the bombardment of Alexandria, that he was awaiting orders to fire Port Said. The attitude of the natives toward the Europeans continues most insulting, the soldiers making threats.

The vessels now in the harbor are as follows: Five British, 4 French, 1 Greek, 1 Spanish, 1 German and 1 Italian.

The Night before last the inhabitants of the Arab village here, led by fanatic priests, attempted to enter the European portion of the town, but were repulsed by the military. The following day the French Consul applied to Admiral Conrad for protection for French subjects. The French Admiral subsequently asked Rear Admiral Hoskins to make a joint occupation to preserve order, and this arrangement was made for last night.

When Dr. Lesseps suddenly returned from Ismailia a violent scene occurred between him and the representatives of the French colony. Dr. Lesseps said he considered Port Said his property; that the Consul was a fool for asking for the occupation that it was playing into the hands of England to do so, and that there was no danger as he had a guarantee of safety for French subjects from the officers commanding the Arab troops. When everything was ready for the landing the French Admiral refused to carry out his part of the arrangement. Dr. Lesseps visited the Governor and Assistant Governor, who were still on board of the Monarch with Rear Admiral Hoskins, but failed to bring them to his views. Reinforcements are arriving every night from Port Guerni. The Governor considers the delay in occupying the town to be fatal, as the Arabs are becoming stronger.

The British corvette Orion has arrived, bringing instructions which completely modify the situation here. Dr. Lesseps protested against her entering the Canal, but she entered without paying dues.

ALEXANDRIA, July 28th.

Ahmed Pasha, Governor, who attempted to allow two prisoners to escape from execution, having again tried to obstruct the police, Lord Charles Bessford called the Khedive's attention to his conduct. The Khedive at once summoned Ahmed, rebuked him severely, and offered the Governorship to Zaki Pasha, who declined the position. The Khedive then informed Ahmed Pasha that he would continue him at the post for a time, but he must scrupulously attend to the orders of Lord Charles Bessford.

The bombardment of Aboukir has been postponed.

12.45 p.m. Heavy firing has been heard in the direction of Aboukir fort.

Admiral Seymour having written to the Khedive asking what measures he would suggest with regard to the Aboukir forts, which the Admiral said were a standing danger to the British position at Ramleh, the Khedive replied that he had sent Vice-Admiral Kimball to summon the garrison to return to their loyalty, and in the event of refusal he would leave the measures to the Admiral's discretion. If the garrison does not surrender, it is believed the forts will be bombarded on Monday.

LONDON, July 28th.

Of the 10,000 reserves just summoned, 3,000 will be sent to Egypt, and another 3,000 will form a reserve corps. The remainder will be drafted into regiments at home.

The House of Commons last evening agreed to a supplementary vote for 10,000 men for the army.

A report was current in the House of Commons last evening that the Sultan of Turkey had made overtures to Britain looking to the latter's requirement of Egypt on the same terms as those on which Cyprus changed hands.

PORT SAID, July 28th.

De Lesseps aims at seizing the Suez Canal. He continues to oppose every plan for assuring its safety. In an interview with the late Governor he said the Khedive was simply a prisoner in the hands of the English, and that England's sole aim was to obtain supreme control of the canal. Yesterday he telegraphed to Arabi Pasha, saying that he had just sent a despatch to De Freycinet, telling him that the Khedive and the agents of the Powers were incorrectly informed as to the situation here; that the canal was in no danger; that he had prevented the landing of the French and British forces, and that if the Minister would make him the representative of France here, he would insure the safety of European life and property. Arabi replied that he would provide for the safety of the canal so long as England respected its neutrality.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 29th. The Sultan, replying to the verbal representations of Lord Dufferin, British Ambassador, requesting the immediate issue of a proclamation against Arabi Pasha, has stated that such a demand cannot be made by England alone, and should proceed from a conference of the Powers in which case it would receive due consideration. Moustapha Pasha has made arrangements which will enable the Porte to despatch 20,000 men to Egypt in successive detachments.

ALEXANDRIA, July 29th. Osman Pasha, Rifai and twenty-six Circassian officers implicated in the recent plot to assassinate Arabi Pasha, arrived to-day from Constantinople, having been summoned by telegraph by the Khedive. They were received with great ceremony.
